STOPWASTE
at home • at work • at school

(re:source) Alameda County's Online Guide for Reuse, Repair, and Recycling

The RE:Source guide is the latest generation of online search tools from StopWaste, intended to provide answers for what to do with the things you no longer need as well as comprehensive city-specific curbside service information on what goes where. It replaces the previous online guide RecycleWhere.org, and is faster and easier to use.

By providing regularly updated reuse and repair alternatives to disposal, RE:Source is also designed to serve as an educational tool to help extend the life of materials as much as possible by promoting the best and highest use.

Users can also browse Material Fact Sheets, which include more in-depth educational information about safe disposal and recycling of special items like batteries or clothing, and help consumers understand the environmental impacts and lifecycle of different materials.

You can find the new RE:Source guide prominently featured on the StopWaste.org homepage. For on-the-go searches, the RE:Source app is also freely available for download on the iOS and Android platforms.

The RE:Source app provides answers on how to reuse, repair, recycle, and safely dispose of 450+ items

with location-based search results from

1,200+ vendors

plus detailed information for 19 curbside programs designed specifically for the

1.6+ million

residents and businesses of Alameda County.