The yellow line is the present fence line drawn over the park image on Google Earth.

The blue line area is approximate and calculated from survey drawings from Union Pacific Railroad documents and placed over the Google Earth map.

The area between the yellow line and the blue line is Belt Line Railroad land purchased following the ruling by the California Superior Court in 2009.

In 2002, by initiative, all Belt Line Railroad land was zoned open space and not changeable without a vote of the people.
